[a collection of random (somewhat humorous) quotes by supposedly wise and famous peeps]

All who wander are not lost!

Do not try to solve all life's problems at once, learn to dread each day as it comes.

And it's no longer a question of staying healthy. It's a question of finding a sickness you like.

The main thing is keeping the main thing the main thing.

It's been said that in order to succeed you must fail, so that you know what not to do the next time. But try not to make the same mistake twice or you'll never get around to all of them. It's also not enough to merely succeed. Others must also fail. With my short attention span I couldn't wait for success, so I went ahead without it.

The nice part about being a pessimist is that you are constantly being either proven right or pleasantly surprised. I mean, how can we actually "know" the universe? My God, it's hard enough to find your way around in Chinatown.

The kind of humor I like is the thing that makes me laugh for five seconds and think for ten minutes.
